Internet Explorer Caching Issue

A common issue among users of dynamic websites is browser caching. Browsers are often defaulted to cache, or store, websites that you commonly visit. Developers of browsers do this so that they don't have to reload data every time you visit a particular website. By now you can see how this could be problematic with dynamic websites that are constantly changing. Fortunately, there is a solution and it involves an easy settings change in your browsers internet options area. The following is a step by step tutorial on changing these settings in Internet Explorer.

Step 1. Go to Tools – Internet Options. (if you are using IE 9 there may not be a tools option on the menu and you may need to click on the tools icon which looks like this 🔯 ).
